Punk trio's high notes

AN INDIE punk trio from North Yorkshire, have made their professional live music debut live by performing on stage alongside acclaimed band Pete And The Pirates.

The gig, at the Birmingham Barfly venue, was organised as part of Youth Music Week, which has been billed as a national celebration of young people's music making.

from around the United Kingdom who beat off competition from 100 other young British talents for the chance to gig live with professional bands.

Youth Music Week takes place every October half-term holiday and provides free musical workshop and performance opportunities for young people across the country.
